

Neos International Conference in Bocholt, Germany 22 – 26 October 2007

How I participated

The conference consisted of student workshops and teacher workshops on the following topics: social competence, learning competence, scientific-environmental competence and intercultural competence.

I participated in the teacher workshop investigating social competence. We looked at how important social skills are in our schools, in our regions and for ourselves personally. At the end of the conference all groups presented their findings.

What I enjoyed most

I enjoyed working with, and sharing experiences and ideas with other European teachers.

I also enjoyed watching the students work together and learn from one another.

What I have gained from the experience

I have learned that all schools and European societies share the same concerns and worries as we do with regard to the four areas we looked at.

I also made some very good friendships with colleagues from NEOS partnership schools.

What comes next

Attending further NEOS conferences/Comenius projects. Maintaining links with colleagues. Create NEOS display.
